The Legacy of the Ancient Wonders

The original "Seven Wonders" acted as a travel guide for explorers in the ancient world. Among these, the Great Pyramid of Giza is the most famous, built as a massive tomb for the Pharaoh Khufu. It remarkably held the record for the world's tallest man-made structure for over 3,800 years.

Other wonders were built to showcase incredible wealth and power. The Temple of Artemis in Turkey was a massive structure made almost entirely of marble. Meanwhile, the Colossus of Rhodes was a giant bronze statue that guarded a harbor. Unfortunately, most of these structures were lost to history. The Colossus, for example, stood for only 54 years before a massive earthquake snapped it at the knees. Today, the Great Pyramid is the only ancient wonder that still stands for us to visit.

My name's Jack and I want to tell you about something I regret. It happened over twenty years ago. I must have been around five years old. It was a summer day and I was in a park playing with some other kids from the neighborhood. There was a boy there named Jeremy who I didn't like very much, but I can't remember why. Anyway, we were playing near a pond. The water was very dirty and it was full of weeds and slime. You can guess what I did, right...? I waited until he was standing near the edge of the pond, and then I crept up behind him and gave him a good hard push in the back. He went flying straight into the filthy, slimy water! His dad rushed over and pulled him out. Jeremy was crying and pointed at me, saying "It was him. He pushed me!" Of course, I denied it. My parents were there, but I insisted I was innocent and without any proof they took my side. The bad thing is that Jeremy's parents and mine used to be good friends, but after that they never spoke to each other again. I should have told my parents the truth, but I didn't. To this day, I still regret pushing that boy into the pond.
