2- Read the following passage then answer the questions:

The Invention of the Telephone

The telephone was invented in the late nineteenth century by Alexander Graham Bell. Before the telephone, people mainly communicated over long distances using the telegraph, which could only send short written messages. Bell believed that it was possible to transmit the human voice using electrical signals.

In 1876, Bell successfully invented the first working telephone. He spoke the famous words, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want to see you," which were transmitted clearly through the device. This invention allowed people to speak to each other instantly, even when they were far apart.

At first, many people did not believe the telephone would be useful. Some companies thought it was only a novelty and had no commercial value. However, Bell continued to improve his invention and later formed a telephone company. Over time, the telephone became one of the most important inventions in history and completely changed the way people communicate.

The History of Makeup.

Makeup has been used for thousands of years. Ancient Egyptians were among the first people to use makeup. They used natural materials such as minerals and plants to color their faces. Makeup was not only for beauty but also for protection from the sun.

In ancient times, both men and women used makeup, especially the wealthy. Dark eye makeup was believed to protect the eyes from disease. Later, in Europe during the Middle Ages, makeup became less popular because it was considered unhealthy. However, it returned in popularity during the 19th century when safer materials were developed.

Today, makeup is used all over the world. Modern products are made using both natural and synthetic ingredients and are available to people of all ages.

2- Read the following passage then answer the questions:

Gossip

Gossip, though often dismissed as harmless conversation, can have profound social and psychological effects. It involves sharing information about others, frequently without verifying its accuracy. This behavior may temporarily strengthen social bonds among those involved, yet it often comes at the expense of another person's dignity and reputation. Over time, persistent gossip can erode trust within communities and create a culture of suspicion and judgment. Moreover, individuals who engage in gossip may be perceived as unreliable or untrustworthy. Therefore, practicing discretion, empathy, and integrity in communication is essential for maintaining respectful and healthy relationships in both personal and professional settings.

- Mark True (T) or False (F):

1- Gossip is sometimes seen as harmless conversation.	T

English

English is one of the most widely used languages in the world today. It is often described as a global language because people from different countries use it to communicate with each other. English is the main language of international business, science, technology, and aviation. Many universities teach their courses in English, which makes it important for students who want to study abroad. In addition, most of the content on the internet is written in English, so learning it helps people access a large amount of information.

The English language has a rich history. It developed from a mixture of Germanic languages and was later influenced by Latin and French. This is why English vocabulary is very diverse. Although some learners think English is difficult, it is considered flexible and adaptable. New words are added regularly, especially in fields like technology and social media.

Today, millions of people learn English as a second language. It not only improves communication skills but also opens doors to better job opportunities and cultural exchange around the world.
